INSTRUCTION AND ADVISEMENT

COURSES TAUGHT/BSN

Since employment at Ohio University, I have taught a majority of courses offered by the School of Nursing. I have regularly taught using distance learning modalities my time at Ohio University. Courses I have taught include the following: NRSE 300 Nursing Transitions, NRSE 325, NRSE 330 Family

Nursing, NRSE 335 Legal and Ethical Issues, NRSE 340 Community Health Nursing, NRSE 405 Nursing Research, NRSE 415 Restorative Nursing, NRSE 416 Nursing Management, NRSE 445 Strategic Planning in Nursing, and NRSE 455 Excellence in Nursing. In 1993-95, I worked in conjunction with the Ohio Department of Health to develop and teach in a Public Health Nursing Certificate Program with an emphasis on Early Intervention. Other things completed: developed elective course on pain management (1995); converted didactic pain management course to a web-based course (1999); and participated in numerous service–learning course experiences. I regularly taught a Tier III course entitled Social Crisis in Health Care Policy when TIER III courses were university requirements for senior students prior to discipline specific courses now developed. I have predominately taught the undergraduate course NRSE 330 Family Nursing and NRSE 341 Community Health Nursing. I have assisted many students to complete independent studies through NRSE 490 in a broad range of topics, many related to community health issues. Teaching has been delivered in traditional formats, but also in distance learning using microwave, compressed video, online, and hybrid formats.

MASTER of SCIENCE in NURSING

Chairperson for the development and approval process of the MSN program at the School, College, University, and Ohio Board of Regents levels; final approvals obtained spring 2003. The MSN program has tracks in Nursing Education, Nursing Administration, and Family Nurse Practitioner. I teach the following courses in the MSN Program: NRSE 601 Nursing Theory, NRSE 605 Evidence-Based Nursing, NRSE 630 Family Health Nursing Seminar, NRSE 631 Family Resource Management, NRSE 651 Educational Strategies, and NRSE 653 Education Practicum II. I supervise graduate students in their capstone experiences. I am to be involved in the conversion of courses that I teach to an online modality.

ONLINE TEACHING/COURSE DESIGN & DEVELOPMENT

In 2003, I converted NRSE 330 Family Nursing and NRSE 341 Community Health Nursing to online courses. During the summer of 2005, I revised the online NRSE 405 Nursing Research course. Summer of 2006, I revised the online capstone course NRSE 455 Nursing Excellence. I have used Blackboard for online and undergraduate and graduate hybrid courses for several years. In 2009, I converted two online courses (NRSE 341 Community Health Nursing; NRSE 330 Family Nursing) to move them to a Web 2.0 format for delivery in a new 5 week compressed format. I converted NRSE 405 Nursing Research and NRSE 455 Excellence in Nursing during 2010. I revised the core graduate courses (i.e., NRSE 601 Nursing Theory, NRSE 630 Family Nursing, NRSE 605 Evidence-Based Nursing) to a totally online format during academic year 2009-2010.

ADDITIONAL GRADUATE STUDIES and OTHER ACTIVITIES

I worked with an interdisciplinary OU College of Health and Human Services faculty group through a HRSA funded grant in a certificate program for graduate students from diverse schools pertaining to diabetes and the elderly (2001-2004). The project was A Multidisciplinary Intervention Program for the Diabetic Elderly Population in Appalachia: Preparing Professionals in Health and Human Services. My role was to assist students better understand cultural implications and family interventions for persons diagnosed with diabetes.

I collaborated with faculty from the School of Human and Consumer Science and directed the research work of two nutrition students as they completed their thesis work related to diabetes dietary routines:

- Lyndel Schuster- Family Dietary Routines in Type 2 Diabetes (2004-2006)
- Tammy Collier-Dietary Routines and Type 2 Diabetes: Instrument Development (2006-2007)

DOCTORAL STUDENTS:

- Tammy Wellman, DNP Student at the University of Kentucky (in process): Testing of Diabetes Education Materials with an Appalachian Population.
- Amy Borchardt, OU College of Arts & Sciences, School of Psychology (in process): The effects of meditation on physiological parameters: An examination of the relaxation response and Yoga Nidra-inegrative restoration. Chair, Steve Patterson, PhD, serving as Dean's Representative.
- James Addington, OU College of Education: Education and Development in Rural Appalachia: An Environmental Education Perspective, Chair, Francis Godwyll, PhD, serving as Dean's Representative, dissertation defense May 17, 2010.
- Kallia Wright, OU College of Communication, School of Health Communication: Putting 'Sugar Diabetes' on the table: Evaluating "The Sugar Plays" as Entertainment-Education in Appalachia. Chair, Nagesh Rao, PhD, serving as Dean's Representative, dissertation defense June 9, 2009.
- Michael Hess, OU College of Education, Chair, Jaylynne Hutchinson, PhD: The Long Walk with Democracy: Democratic Teacher Narratives in Rural Appalachian Ohio, serving as Dean's Representative, dissertation defense December 8, 2008.
- Melissa Meyer, OU College of Arts & Sciences, School of Psychology; Chair, Mary DeGroot, PhD: Examination of Differences by Rural and Urban Location on Cardiac Rehabilitation outcomes, serving as Dean's Representative, dissertation defense June 12, 2008.
- Patsy Jackson, University of KY, College of Nursing, Diabetes self-management in women: Applying the Lifestyle Change Process Model to a Peer-to-Peer Support Innovation, Chair, Debra Anderson, PhD, served as External Committee Member, defended March, 2008.
- Jantakan Kanjanawetang, Thailand, Thai Family Health Routines Scale, served as External Committee member, dissertation defense fall, 2007.

INTERDISCIPLINARY WORK:

I participated as a collaborator in TCOM 804 Digital Divide and Culture course with Dr. Karen Riggs winter 2007. The collaboration investigated the possibility of serious video game design to engage rural Appalachian families with knowledge building and behavior changes in the prevention and management of diabetes. A white paper was written from the experience.

I assembled and participated in two faculty learning communities. The first was the Appalachian Learning Community from 2002 – 2008, an important outcome of this group was the faculty and student survey that resulted in the report titled Appalachian Perspectives at Ohio University: Findings of Spring 2004 Survey. The second community, the Communication, Technology, and Rural Health learning community, comprised of faculty from four colleges (i.e., College of Communication, College of Osteopathic Medicine, College of Engineering, and College of Health and Human Services) met during the 2007-2008 academic year.

CLINICAL EXPERIENCES:

I have been actively engaged with many community non-profit groups and worked in community health fairs and community projects over the years of my employment at Ohio University.

Since 2004, I have been active in the quarterly Diabetes Coalition group that was started and participate in meetings linked with the Appalachian Rural Health Institute Diabetes Center at the Cornwell Center, a collaborative between Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine and O'Bleness Hospital. I regularly present at these meetings and interact with the diabetes educators primarily in assisting them to identify ways they can more effectively address family-focused care during patient education.

CONSULTATION:

(September 26-30, 2011): Consultative work with the faculty members of the Minnesota State University at Mankato, MN in preparation for writing book chapters for the textbook entitled Family-Focused Care: 'Think Family' and Transform Nursing Practice. Working with the leadership team from the Mayo Clinic Health Systems, Mankato, MN to understand and identify ways family-focused nursing can be used to guide practice.

(February 1 -12, 2010, April 4-7, 2010, September 17 – 24, 2010, November 8-12, 2010, Spring 2011): The consultative work at the School of Nursing at University of Minnesota, Mankato was primarily to assist in the development of the Glen Taylor Nursing Institute for Family and Society. I worked with faculty members and students to advance learning about family and societal health and develop a 5 year strategic plan. A comprehensive summary report was written and submitted. Input on the development of a unified curriculum distinguished in the area of family-focused nursing for students at the undergraduate level was provided and the new curriculum will begin fall 2011. A book prospectus for a family-focused nursing textbook was submitted to F.A. Davis and a book contract secured for a textbook entitled Family-Focused Care: 'Think Family' and Transform Nursing Practice. I will serve as lead editor along with Dr. Sandra Eggenberger, Dr. Patricia Young, and Dr. Norma Krumwiede. The work will primarily the work of the school's faculty members and other family expert colleagues. Work continues to assist faculty and graduate students develop their scholarship in the areas of family nursing and societal health. Additional work has occurred with the Immanuel St. Joseph Hospital in Mankato as they have desired to learn more about the Family Health Model and family-focused nursing.

(2008-present): Participate in the Advisory Council to develop the Glenn Taylor Nursing Institute for Family and Society, the Glen Taylor Family and Society Endowed Nursing Faculty Chair, and the Becky Taylor Doctoral Fellowships in nursing at the Minnesota State University at Mankato, MN, School of Nursing. This is an ongoing committee that continues to give feedback to their Family Institute and connect them with the International Family Nursing Association.

(2008 -2009): Consultant employed by the National League for Nursing Accreditation Commission (NLNAC) to assist/guide the instructional design, content development, and production of the online educational program to be used to prepare new site visitors and update/review for experienced site visitors.

(1997 – 1998) Assisted the Meigs County, Ohio Department of Health conduct a community health assessment and completed a written report for them.

CONFERENCES PROVIDED:

Better Health in Appalachia: Preventing Diabetes and its Risks conference held T Southern Ohio Medical Center, the Friend's Center, Portsmouth, OH on July 14, 2011.

Improving the Picture of Diabetes in the Appalachian Region conference held in Margaret Walter Hall on May 19, 2010. CEUs were offered, approximately 135 nurses, diabetes educators, health educators and other professionals, students, and faculty attended.

The Diabetes: A Family Matter program was launched March 18, 2009 with a full day conference titled Diabetes: A Family Conference at Baker Center Ballroom, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio. CEUs were offered, approximately 150 nurses, diabetes educators, health educators and other professionals, students, faculty, and lay persons were registered and about 175 attended.

A diabetes conference entitled Improving Diabetes Outcomes in the Appalachian Region occurred May 19, 2010 in the rotunda of at Margaret Walter Hall, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio. CEUs were provided for nurses, CDEs, health educators and pharmacists, about 150 were in attendance.

INTERNATIONAL SCHOLARSHIP

Taiwan (September 21-October 2, 2005): Lecture presentations on the Family Health Model, family-focused care, community mental health care, health literacy, and on-line learning to faculty members, graduate, and undergraduate students at Chang Gung University, Chang Gung Institute of Technology, National Defense Medical Center University, and National Taipei School of Nursing. All presentations were in the area of Taipei.

Mexico (December 2003): I developed an independent study course for 10 RN to BSN students for one week trip to Monterrey, Mexico during December 2003. Students in this four credit hour class compared and contrasted American and Mexican culture, health care practices, nursing development and education along with nursing as a medical practice. The students were introduced to Mexican culture and to the geographic region of Monterrey, Nuevo León. We visited a number of nursing schools and health care providers during the visit and exchanged ideas about nursing practice.

Taiwan (October 14-26, 2000): Lecture presentations in Taiwan to RNs, BSN, graduate nursing students, and faculty in schools of nursing and others: Chang Gung University, Fu-Jen University, Yan-Ming University, National Taiwan University, National Defense Medical Center, Sun Yat-Sen Cancer Center (all in area of Taipei) and Buddhist Tzu-Chi Hospital in Hualien on hospice care, pain management, and topics related to professional nursing.

SCHOLARLY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Diabetes: A Family Matter

The main thrust of my scholarship from fall 2005 to the present has been the development of a culturally sensitive and family-focused program and toolkit entitled Diabetes: A Family Matter targeted for those that live in the Appalachian region of the nation. This region is comprised of parts of 12 states and all of West Virginia or a total of 420 counties. These efforts have built on earlier research work and two years of formative research that included an environmental scan of diabetes in the Appalachian region and qualitative studies about living with diabetes in Appalachia. The completed program, materials, and toolkit activities include: a web-based platform for delivery, a film entitled Living with Diabetes in Appalachia, the three SUGAR Plays, a Diabetes Educator Manual, a SUGAR Helper Manual, a series of family-focused brochures and posters, two fotonovellas, media campaign materials, and a series of Toolkit Activities. The website www.diabetesfamily.net has downloadable program and toolkit materials available online and can serve as a portal to diabetes information for those in the Appalachian region. Materials were completed through collaborations with interdisciplinary faculty, grasping

RESEARCH, RESEARCH FUNDING, and OTHER GRANTS:
