Community Information

What in the World?

What is our role in the ever-changing world in which we live? What does it mean to be a responsible and active citizen of our local community and of the world? This residential learning community will provide a better understanding of what is going on in the world while providing an opportunity to reflect on and plan the role you play in society, now and in the future.

Mind, Body, and Balance

Mind, Body, and Balance will address the 'whole' you: self-awareness, your new community, personal wellness and the balance between these and college life. Through various exercises, discussions, and out-of-class activities we will challenge the balance between concepts of physical and mental health and your life as a college student. Exploring methods of mind and body fitness will be our goal.

Exploring Your Environment

Participants in this community will explore the Athens environment: from the campus to the city, to the surrounding hills and streams. Visit the source of your food, water, and heat through environmental tours; discover local environmental controversies, all while exploring your ecological identity and your connections to the natural world.

Celebrate the Arts

Do you have an appreciation for the arts? By exploring different areas of fine arts, this RLC employs elements of music, theater, dance and art to address many issues facing college students today. As a participant in this RLC you will take part in out-of-class activities that allow you to explore our campus and its artistic resources. You may attend a dance performance as a medium to talk about diversity, an art gallery to discuss community responsibility and you may read and dissect a play to sharpen critical thinking skills.

Pop Culture

This RLC explores the elements of society that express and define our popular culture, including music, film, advertisements, print media, and television. Participants in this RLC will discuss the influence that media has on our popular culture and how it shapes individuals, groups, and society as a whole. In and out-of-class activities will encourage students to examine and analyze pop culture objectively while connecting this influence to decisions made while in college and beyond.
