Would You Recommend ALD?
By: Justin Brabander

As Alpha Lambda Delta approaches a new year, you and everyone else currently in the honor’s fraternity will be considered alumni, making room for future members.

Would you recommend this organization to future members?

“My advice is to join the club - don’t second guess it. It is the most fun, rewarding experience that actually rewards someone for doing well in school. It is also a chance to get involved on campus and make friends,” says Amber Burton, last year’s ALD Fundraising Co-chair Officer.

With that in mind, prospective future members have much to consider when getting involved on campus. It is often the reported experience of others that can help a person make a decision.

ALD does more than just typical volunteer work. From Charity Balls supporting For The Love Of Children to Date Auctions or Pie in the Face, ALD has done it all to provide unique and fun ways to make revenue for the organization and local charities.

Some of them can even be more fun than expected, explains Burton who was working the Pie in the Face Fundraiser. “A girl was so intoxicated that she once tried to pay by credit card. That was a fun experience,” described Burton.

If volunteer work is not your cup of tea, ALD does more events than just that. We have socials spread throughout the school year where it is a great place to meet people and learn more about upcoming events ALD is holding.

If you know someone who is interested in ALD, or even who is on the fence about joining, remind them about everything the organization has to offer. “ALD was very rewarding for me in the end. I made friends and some other connections through the organization I would not have had otherwise,” concludes Burton.

Alpha Lambda Delta has been part of numerous charity and volunteer events around campus, like Passion Works or Relay for Life.

“Relay for Life last year is where I met some really cool people. I am still friends with these people and I am glad I did it,” says Burton.
