Joan K. Wigal, Assistant Director Academic Technology, Office of Information Technology.

Recipients of the 2012 Outstanding Administrator Award

Shane Gilkey
As Assistant Vice President for Research at Ohio University, Shane has worked to support the research and creative activity efforts of Ohio University faculty and students by streamlining systems and simplifying processes. In recognition of his leadership, hard work and dedication, he is awarded the Outstanding Administrator Award this 16th day of May 2012.

Nominators described him as resourceful, enthusiastic and always helpful. They noted his vital contributions in the Dean’s office of the College of Arts and Sciences, the Vice President for Finance, and the Department of Physics and Astronomy before assuming his current position. They described his management style as one of continuous learning, one that has promoted a smoothly running staff based on mutual respect and proactive leadership.

His work in envisioning the LEO grants administration system, seeking input from colleagues around the university and working with programmers to create a nationally recognized system, has drawn high marks. Nominators also noted his work in creating “Navigating Research Administration at Ohio University” a comprehensive guide to critical information that has simplified and clarified the grant seeking process for faculty and staff.

The Information Technology Advisory committee and the OU Hockey group are among some of the campus organizations that have benefitted from his support. The Athens community profits from his work with the Little Beavers 4-H Club and the Santa Tree project of Athens County Children’s Services.

For his 19 years of creative and diligent work in guiding, supporting and enhancing the research enterprise at Ohio University, he has been selected to receive the Outstanding Administrator Award.
Monica S. Jones
As Director of Diversity for the Regional Campuses of Ohio University and Director of Student Services at the Zanesville Campus, she has worked to build an environment of respect and opportunity. In recognition of her leadership and dedication, she is awarded the Outstanding Administrator Award this 16th day of May 2012.

Nominators noted that as Director of Student Services she was a passionate student advocate and encouraged students to grow beyond their comfort zones. They mentioned her careful coordination and connection with student-led events, programs and projects at the Zanesville Campus. Her efforts to connect regional campus students with cultural events on the Athens campus drew notice. The Student Diversity Leadership Forum, where students presented their research and scholarship on diversity, drew 100 students to the Lancaster Campus due to her encouragement and support.

Students Teaching Against Racism in Society (S.T.A.R.S) and Gay Lesbian and Straight Supporters (G.L.A.S.S.) are among the student organizations that have benefited from her support and guidance. Her work in creating presentations such as “Diversity 101” for educators, “Managing Differences” for church leaders in the Zanesville area and “It’s all about yOU” to under-represented students about OHIO are examples of the creativity she brings to the efforts to educate groups about inclusive education, and to build awareness and support.

The Putnam Underground Railroad Education Center, Zanesville Community High School and Genesis Spirit of Women are among the groups that have benefited from her engagement in the Zanesville community.

For her creative and diligent work in guiding students and supporting the diversity efforts on the regional campuses of Ohio University she has been selected to receive the Outstanding Administrator Award.

Cathy Waller
As Director of the Child Development Center of Ohio University, Cathy has demonstrated effective leadership in the coordination and development of a nationally recognized Early Childhood Education Center. In recognition of her hard work and dedication, she is being awarded the Outstanding Administrator Award this 16th day of May 2012.

Nominators noted her enthusiasm for all aspects of the Center’s operations and her interest in each child who attends. They gave her high marks for her support of the center’s staff in developing their skills and furthering their education. Her work in managing the Center’s transition to the Patton College of Education and its integration into the College has assisted the continued development of the Early Childhood Education program. The Center’s re-accreditation by the National Academy of Early Childhood programs benefitted from her experience, guidance and support.
Her work in creating and sustaining the Center's Garden Party, which helps the children share their work in the Center's garden, has resulted in an event that draws 200 guests each year. This event allows the children and their teachers to showcase the Center to supporters around the university and the Athens area. Events such as Pumpkinpalooza offer other opportunities for children and staff to highlight the Center's activities.

The Patton College Curriculum Council, the Kennedy Museum Advisory Board and Administrative Senate are some of the campus organizations that benefit from her efforts. Hocking College, Malone College and Shawnee State University have sought her expertise in creating and strengthening early childhood education programs and centers, and in navigating the accreditation process.

For her continued support for Early Childhood Education and her creative work with the students, parents, teachers and staff at the Child Development Center of Ohio University, she has been selected to receive the Outstanding Administrator Award.
