UB Recruits New Students and Adds New Features to Our Newsletter

Ohio University Upward Bound is prepared for another year! Our recruiting season is set to begin in October and we're looking forward to meeting students in our participating high schools who are excited about pursuing their educational goals.

It is our hope that new participants will learn something from their academic year and summer residential experience that is powerful enough to bring them to a higher level of self-development and leaves them anticipating the journey ahead.

Being that part of Upward Bound’s mission is to provide a more holistic approach to meeting the educational needs of our students, this year The Drum will feature sections on health and diversity to increase our students’ awareness, as well as promote healthier lifestyle choices and broader cultural and social perspectives that will follow them upon graduation from high school.

The health section of The Drum will include information on recreational sports and physical fitness, positive emotional growth and self-esteem, and healthier eating habits and nutrition; the diversity section of the newsletter will be dedicated to continuing our commitment to raising our students’ consciousness on issues related to recognizing, understanding, and appreciating cultural and social differences and similarities, as all of these aspects are important to expanding their willingness to gain new experiences outside their "comfort zone".

Every quarter, students, parents/guardians, and supporters can look forward to exciting updates on our students’ academic and extracurricular achievements in their high schools and communities. This quarter we are very proud to feature “Senior Profiles” which gives readers a glimpse into the lives of Upward Bound senior participants’ — their college aspirations, major fields of interest, career goals, and hobbies.

Thank you for your continued participation, support, and assistance with our mission to create opportunities that prepare our students for successful graduation from high school and positive transition to college!

Our End Of The Summer Trip To Washington, DC

As a tradition, Ohio University’s Upward Bound rewards those students that do well in their classes an opportunity to participate in an out-of-state college tour and educational field trip at the conclusion of the summer component. This year the Upward Bound staff and students traveled to our nation’s capital, Washington, D.C.

During our visit to Washington we saw historical sites, such as the Columbus Statue, The National World War II Memorial. We also toured the Fredrick Douglas National Historical Site, the Lincoln Memorial, Vietnam Veteran Memorial, the Korean War Veterans Memorial and many more memorials.

The fun doesn’t stop there. Believe it or not we also found time to visit two universities. First, we visited Maryland’s oldest, public historically black college, Bowie State University. We then traveled to George Washington University, the largest institution of higher education in the nation’s capital.

We also had fun as we celebrated the August birthdays at the Hard Rock Café and we got lots of exercise from walking up the many stairs to reach the top of the Lincoln Memorial!
Iraq is located in the Middle East bordering the Persian Gulf, between Iran and Kuwait. The area is mostly desert, consisting of mild to cool winters and dry, hot summers. The land is populated with approximately 24 million Arab, Kurdish, Armenian, Turkoman, Assyrian, and other ethnic groups.

The majority of the natives, approximately 95%, practice the Muslim religion. The Muslims are divided into two groups, the Shiites and the Sunni’s. The remaining 5% of the population practice other religions. Iraq’s official language is Arabic but other languages, such as Kurdish, Assyrian, and Armenian are also spoken.

Iraqi’s eat a variety of foods; however, common foods eaten include grilled lamb, chicken, fish, vegetables, rice and bread. The currency used in Iraq is called dinar ($1 U.S. Dollar = 0.312400 Iraq Dinar).

The clothing and dress attire of Iraq’s varies. While some Iraqi’s choose to wear traditional Western clothing, others might wear their traditional Islamic dress, instead.

The most recent Iraq flag was adopted in 1991. The flag consists of three horizontal bands of red, white, and green. In addition, there are three five pointed stars in the white band with an Arabic script, ALLAHU AKBAR (God is Great) written in green.

The Benefits of Sleep

Fact: A midday nap reverses information overload.

Fact: The late stage of sleep can boost by 20% your acquisition of coordination crucial for playing a sport, a musical instrument or any fine motor control.

Fact: Sleep strengthens the nerve circuits that underline learning and memory, allowing the brain to make and consolidate new neural connections.

Fact: Missing out on sleep seriously impairs the body’s ability to process blood sugar, impeding the action of insulin much as in diabetes. Sleep deprivation may contribute to obesity.

Fact: Sleeping for six hours a night may sound pretty good, but it’s not good enough to keep your immune system functioning properly. Restricting your sleep by a mere two hours a night for one week provokes the process of inflammation, which may set up people for heart disease.

Fact: Sleep deprivation curtails your ability to come up with creative solutions to life’s challenges.

Ways Parents Can Improve Their Childs Sleep

- Have a cut-off time for TV, video games, and computer, etc. If they have these items in their bedrooms make sure that the cut-off time applies there, too.
- Avoid having anything containing caffeine before going to bed, such as caffeinated drinks and chocolate.
- Keep your child’s bedroom quiet, and just for sleeping. No computer, TV or stereo in the room.
- Makes sure the bedroom is the right temperature, neither too hot nor too cold, and keep it dark at night, although the first thing upon awakening in the morning, either turn on the lights or let in the sunshine.
- Make sure there is nothing causing your son/daughter stress.
- Establish a routine. Try to get to bed at the same time every night, and get up at the same hour every morning, and this includes weekends.
- It may be necessary to give up some extracurricular activities in order for your child to get the sleep they need. I know this may be difficult, but it’s better than your child diminishing their physical or mental health.
- Allow your child to do something relaxing before bedtime.
Students We Want To Hear From You!

Because each student has various academic accomplishments, experiences, interests, and involvements, no set formula is used for the college admissions process. However, there is no doubt that college admission is selective and competitive. Ultimately, a college’s decision to offer one student admission over another is not solely relied on the student’s ability, but the competitive nature of the students who have applied.

Here’s a list of some of the things that college’s are looking for when they are selecting students for admissions.

1. Academic Performance: If possible, take Honors and AP courses. Your courses, class rank and grade-point average show that you are prepared for college.

2. Performance on Standardized Tests: Scores on the SAT or ACT exams.

3. Personal Statement/Essay: For some colleges, you are required to submit a 250-500 word essay. However, it’s a benefit to submit an essay to a college even if it isn’t a requirement. This is your opportunity to tell the admissions committee more about you.

4. Involvements/Special Talents: Colleges are looking to learn more about you, how you spend your time, what leadership positions you have held, as well as the skills that you currently possess.

5. Recommendations: Colleges will require you to have 2-3 letters of recommendation from someone who can attest to your character and show that you will be a good citizen and that you have actively participated in your community. Individuals who could write such letters would be teachers, guidance counselors, supervisors/employers, coaches, and religious leaders.

Each year college admission becomes increasingly more competitive. Colleges are looking for students who are responsible, independent, self-aware and active participants in their education.

So, as you plan and prepare for college please keep these things in mind!

UB students what great things are you doing? Are you playing sports? Are you competing in any scholastic teams? What awards have you received lately? We want to hear about the great accomplishments that you are making, both in the school and in the community, so that we can include them in our next edition of “The Drum.”
