14.0 TRAINING AND INFORMATION

Training and assistance for researchers is available in the form of:

1) Consultation assistance from the Biosafety Officer, IBC members, EHS Staff, Laboratory Animal Resources Staff, and the Occupational Health Clinic. Contact them directly.

2) Computerized and written information from this manual, EHS web site, governmental agencies, and many other sources. See Appendix C.

3) Training programs are available from EHS; see the website for current offerings. Ask EHS about additional training, if your desired training is not already listed on the EHS website. As needed, the Biosafety Officer is available for assistance when designing and presenting training programs for individual needs or audiences.
