INTERNATIONAL WORKS OF VOINOVICH STUDENTS

Mark Weinberg, Director of the Voinovich School

(Introduced by Joe Berman)

The work of students of the Voinovich School of Leadership and Public Affairs will be the subject of the April luncheon. Mark Weinberg, professor of that discipline and founder/director of the school, will be the key speaker. He will be accompanied by graduate students, Dana Larsen, who is earning a master of public administration degree, and Jessie Soye, who is in the environmental studies program.

The earliest segment of the present Voinovich School was ILGARD (Institute for Local Government Administration and Rural Development), founded in 1981. In 1995, ILGARD was combined with the Environmental Studies program to create the Voinovich Center, named for OU alumnus George V. Voinovich as he was going from being Ohio's governor to its junior U.S. senator. The Voinovich Center added programs in strategic leadership for the public sector and started a new partnership with the College of Business to create jobs and companies in the region. In 2007, the Center became the Voinovich School, with a greatly expanded program specializing three areas: entrepreneurship and regional development, energy and the environment, and public service and leadership. Project-based student experiences have been a central part of the School's activities since 1981.

Weinberg was named the Appalachian Regional Commission's Whisman Scholar in 2002, and he served in that capacity for three years. He earned his undergraduate and master's degrees from the University of Maryland and his doctorate from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. At Ohio University, he has taught a range of management courses, including the capstone seminar in Public Administration, Public Budgeting, Financial Management, and Public Policy Analysis. He has also published in these areas.

A Message From The President - GEORGE WECKMAN

Ed Baum, Arthur Woolley, and I attended a conference at the STRS building in Columbus on March 15, sponsored by the Ohio Council of Higher Education Retirees (OCHER). It was “A Call for Action” regarding attacks on our pensions in the legislature and the media. For me the speeches and discussions boiled down to “fear and suspicion” -- fear that our pension funds could be weakened or raided and suspicions that the money-management industry and economic ideologies are behind these attacks.

The first line of defense is truth. The five public retirement systems in Ohio (including PERS and STRS) are NOT in trouble. Because of the recession and increasing life longevity, adjustments have been formulated to make 30-year projections safer. These may be viewed at www.strsoh.org/pdfs/40-305.pdf.

It is NOT true that these pension systems will make financial claims on state resources. If anything, they support the state economy through the local buying power of, and taxes on, pension recipients.

Much of the discussion about public system pensions in Ohio focuses on the differences between “defined benefit” and “defined contribution” plans. STRS assures us of specific benefits, that is stable income when we retire. This kind of plan has many advantages in efficiency and stability over the “contribution” programs which force participants to plan and invest for retirement on their own.

Suspicions arise from the campaign to privatize pension funds, make them “defined benefit” plans. Some people like the idea that state employees should invest and prepare for their own retirements. If they are like me, however, they will end up poorer in retirement years due to stupid investments and enrich fund managers with much of their savings. Freedom to manage one’s own affairs is attractive, of course, but it easily succumbs to short-term pressures and ends up with insufficient retirement income.

Please join with us in supporting the proposals that STRS has submitted to the legislature which strengthen and guarantee this admirable retirement system for ourselves and our younger colleagues.

George

Notes from the March Emeriti Luncheon
Bob Winters On the Arts in Athens

Bob began by noting the importance of public art, which includes a long history from cave paintings to virtually everything around us today. Unfortunately politicians have added dimensions to the term which almost changes it beyond recognition.

Art can best be seen as creativity. Art is sharing a compelling insight into the human condition. In this respect Athens County has long been known as a place for the arts. Indeed, Nelsonville has been emphasizing itself in the arts.

The City of Athens created an Athens Municipal Arts Commission to advise the city with respect to public art. Some have suggested that its purpose is “to protect the city from the artists and the artists from the city.”

Part of the commission’s charge has been to develop guidelines for the display of public art and public performances. This, recently, has included a public mural policy. This, in turn, has raised the question of how “public murals” differ from “graffiti.” Moreover, it raises the question as to the limits of what an individual can place on his/her own property. This question is being reviewed by the city law director

The commission has also worked to develop the idea of collegiality among artists and the importance of identifying the stakeholders and keeping them involved in the discussion.

In 2009 the commission decided to embark on a study to examine the impact of the arts on our economy. It is developing a data base of venues, events, and artists as well as art that is displayed in restaurants, hospitals, and public buildings. Among other things it has identified 136 non-profit organizations involved in the arts in Athens County. It has also been surveying audiences of various art activities. It will also create a countywide web site of the arts. “We hope that you will join us in the endeavor,” he said. “We need “brains,” funds, and volunteers.”

Remember: Creative people choose to live in Athens and we are among those.

OCAA Board and Award Nominations

The Ohio University Emeriti Association has a wealth of knowledge about and many connections with former Bobcats. Every year the Ohio University Alumni Association Board of Directors selects recipients for five different award categories, to recognize the numerous achievements and contributions alumni and friends make to their communities and Ohio University. The Board constantly researches for applicants and offers the Emeriti Association the opportunity to nominate exceptional alumni for these various awards. Awards include: Alumnus/a of the Year, Medal of Merit Award, Distinguished Service Award, and the Charles J. and Claire O. Ping Recent Graduate Award. Board member Cita Strauss will speak briefly at the April 21 meeting, to encourage Emeriti members to participate in the process. She will outline the procedures and guidelines for nominations.

BE PROUD OF YOUR (Emeriti) PARK

Take part in its Spring ‘Spruce Up’ and join with the Emeriti crew, all of whom place Wednesday mornings on their reoccurring weekly calendars, to spend from 9 to 10 AM beautifying the park, weather permitting.

Each week we gather at the park to see what Landscape Coordinator Susan Calhoun has in store for us to accomplish. She provides all the tools and guidance for an hour of weeding, removing old growth and unwanted plants, and/or occasional planting and supplemental mulching. We did our first work in the park on Wednesday, March 30, and will continue weekly throughout the Spring, Summer and Fall as weather permits. Join us; the more we have the more we can accomplish or the sooner we can leave.

For further information, contact Richard Dean, park chairman: (740) 593-8487 or deanr@ohio.edu

By the way: visit the park; the flowers are blooming and they are beautiful.

EMERITIOGRAM

What are the notches and lines for the April Newsletter? The notches and lines are “April is!”

“April is the cruellest month,” wrote T. S. Elliot, “breeding lilacs out of the dead land, mixing memory and desire, stirring dull roots with spring rain.”

April is an Awareness Month. It is National Child Abuse Prevention Awareness Month. It is also Stress Awareness Month, Mathematics Awareness Month, and National Poetry Month. It is also IBS Awareness Month, STD Awareness Month, Sexual Assault Awareness Month, Autism Awareness Month, and Alcohol Awareness Month.

April is also Panty Month, Global Astronomy Month, Financial Literary Month, the Drunkest Month, National Car Care Month, and Fair Housing Month.

And of course, “April is in my mistress' face.” wrote Thomas Morley in his English madrigal, published in 1594: “April is in my mistress' face, And July in her eyes hath place; Within her bosom is September, But in her heart a cold December
