OHIO Student Farm Orchard
“Food influences everything we do. Learning to grow food is one of the most powerful tools that exists in our society today”

- Joy Kostansek, Food Studies and Sociology Master’s Student
Ohio University’s hidden gem: The Student Farm
The OHIO Student Farm on West State Street serves as a laboratory for sustainability, providing produce for local food banks, teaching and research opportunities, and a space where students gain hands-on experience.
For years, the farm has dreamed of expanding with a Student Farm Orchard, where students cultivate fruit trees and berry bushes.
The OHIO Student Farm Orchard will provide:

- Training for students and the community to work with perennial production
- Cultural restoration of Athens's rich history of fruit production
- Space for community workshops

... As well as apples, pears, blueberries, raspberries, strawberries, and more!
A generous donor has offered to match every dollar we raise for the OHIO Student Farm Orchard on Giving Day. We've secured the space, now all we need are the plants.

Your money will go directly towards funding:

- 40 apple and pear trees
- 60 blueberry plants
- 60 raspberry plants
- Fencing and netting for plant protection
