Keynote: Time Out: Where are you?, with Jenn Bennett, MS, Executive Director of Wellbeing

When is the last time you took a good look at yourself in the mirror? Some of you will respond, “this morning”; while others might say, “I’d rather not”. This interactive keynote will help you be your own Fairy God Mother, by reclaiming self-care in an evidence-based way while keeping everything simple and tangible (without all of the inflated price tags).

Objectives:

- Assess your current self-care habits and routines in multiple dimensions of wellness
- Identify strategies to sustainably implement self-care
- Name and understand university and community resources for self-care and wellbeing
- Create your very own Fairy God Mother mantra

Jenn Bennett has over 15 years of experience in fitness and wellbeing. She has received her degrees, with concentration in Exercise Physiology, a BS from Ohio University ’05 and a MS from the University of Tennessee ‘08. She worked at one of the fastest growing YMCA in Tacoma Washington specializing in active seniors and behavior change programming. At Cornell University, Jenn worked with their wellness team to design campus-wide employee challenges, life coaching, and manage Cornell’s Healthy Aging Classes for retirees. Currently, Director of WellWorks, Ohio University’s employee wellness programming and two facilities in Athens, OH. With her leadership, her team enhances wellness experiences for members and employees while providing an experiential learning opportunity for students. Jenn is a facilitator in Resilience & Thriving and a Nationally Board Certified - Health and Wellness Coach. Her passion is connecting with others and find their inner awesomeness.

10:20 AM–11:15 AM

Preparing for Graduate School: Applying for Scholarships

Presented by the Ohio University Graduate College. Presented by Dr. Becky Bushey-Miller

Choosing your path to graduate school can be an intimidating process. This session will help you consider what type of graduate program or college is right for you, and demystifying the application process.

Presented by Dr. M. Geneva Murray

Within this workshop, we will define microaggressions and implicit bias. As a group, we will role play various scenarios to practice intervention strategies. These strategies will be transferrable and may also be used to interrupt other forms of bias and discrimination.

Dealing with bias on the job market: Race, gender, family, sexuality, and class

Presented by Claire Kamp Dush, Ph.D.
This session will focus on experiences during the on-campus job interview, and will assist participants in considering important questions during the process to examine bias and culture.

Identifying Your Pedagogical Approach

Presented by Tim Vickers, MA

We’ve all been in classrooms where we have felt both engaged and disengaged. We have witnessed what works, but may not know the theory behind why or what pedagogical approach we are even using in the classroom when we mirror someone else’s approach. We may just do it because we know it works. This session will help you articulate what your pedagogical approach is.

11:45AM-1:00PM

Lunch Keynote: The Gender Penalty with Claire Kamp Dush, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Department of Human Sciences, Ohio State University

Women are more likely than men to receive bachelors and advanced degrees. Yet women continue to be paid less than men, and are underrepresented in tenure-track and administrative positions in higher ed, as well as in senior management positions outside academia. Further, even among highly educated, dual earner [heterosexual] couples, women continue to do more housework and childcare than their partners. Why is this happening? And what can women, and their allies, do about it? This talk will cover the gender penalty that women face in the labor market, and outline concrete strategies for overcoming some of the penalties at work and home.

1:10PM-2:05PM

Graduate School Mapping with Beyoncé

Presented by Tamika Williams, M.A.
This workshop uses the life of Beyoncé to help students realize what they need to do to prepare for graduate school applications, and what they should be looking for within a graduate program so that their needs are met.

Managing High Stress Situations: What is Your Fear Factor? How to Prepare and Respond
Presented by Amy Grube, MD

Utilizing the experiences of an emergency room doctor, this session will help students consider the transferable skills that she developed to deal with high stress situations so that they may apply them to their own lives and working experiences.

American Association of University Women Start Smart Salary Negotiation Workshop
Presented by Dr. Becky Bushey-Miller

The workshop is designed to assist participants in first-time salary negotiation situations. This salary negotiation workshop presents the wage gap, with a particular discussion of the gender wage gap and how to combat it by improving one's salary negotiation skills. Salary negotiation is analyzed through budgeting, salary benchmarking, and negotiation tips and tactics. This is a two-part workshop, and those attending should expect to stay in the session from 1:10PM-3:05PM.

Designing Inclusive Curriculum
Presented by Dr. Sarah Wyatt and Dr. Purba Das

In this workshop, we will learn how to foster a learning environment that promotes a sense of belonging and support. We will identify and apply both content and pedagogical approaches for diversity and inclusion.

2:10PM-3:05PM

Leveraging Alumni Connections for Success in Graduate School
Presented by Erin Essak Kopp
Students will be empowered to network with alumni in order learn about different graduate programs and tips to navigating graduate school successfully. In addition to learning about tools for making those connections, this session will also provide insight into networking etiquette with alumni.

Panel: Finding Leadership Opportunities within Graduate School Panel

Panelists include Ashley Kafton, Claudia Cisneros, Carina Capitine, and Viktoria Marinova

Organized by Graduate Student Senate, this panel is geared towards eliminating isolating experiences within graduate school by taking advantage of leadership opportunities for both personal and professional development. Panelists will discuss how they found leadership positions, and provide audience members with recommendations as to how they too can get involved either formally or informally!

Presented by Dr. Becky Bushey-Miller

The workshop is designed to assist participants in first-time salary negotiation situations. This salary negotiation workshop presents the wage gap, with a particular discussion of the gender wage gap and how to combat it by improving one's salary negotiation skills. Salary negotiation is analyzed through budgeting, salary benchmarking, and negotiation tips and tactics. This is a two-part workshop, and those attending must also attend the workshop during the 1:10-2:05PM session.

Virtual Reality Classroom Management

Presented by Dr. Patti McSteen, Eric R. Williams, MFA, and John Bowditch, M.A.

Virtual Reality Classroom Management: After the tragic shooting at Virginia Tech in 2007, the landscape in higher education has dramatically changed. Best practices dictate that all campuses have behavioral intervention and threat assessment teams in order to address potentially dangerous people and situations. Drawing from the traditional methods of training for people in dangerous or crisis situations, a collaboration of content and technical experts created an innovative approach using VR technology to address the need of educating and training the larger campus community with a focus on the classroom management to threat assessment continuum.

3:10-4:05PM

Panel: Navigating Graduate School with a family

Panelists include: Dasmeet Kaur, M.Sc., Ph.D. student in Molecular and Cellular Biology/Environmental and Plant Biology, Maggie DeLong, MEd in Higher Education, Laura Risler, Ph.D. in Higher Education, and moderated by Becky Bushey-Miller, Ph.D.

This panel will help build connections between those who are in graduate school and also have children or partners. There will be a discussion of resources and strategies for work/life balance shared.

What's Your Brand?: How Assessing Your Professional Presentation of Self Can Help You Get Ahead

Presented by Kailee Slusser

Assess self-presentation and perception from a new perspective by applying marketing and branding techniques to your professional or personal persona. Think about your mission, vision, values, and attributes. Craft a branding strategy that will help you present as your ideal you.

Panel: Navigating STEM Fields as a Woman

Panelists include Dean Mei Wei, Ph.D., Nancy Sandler, Ph.D., Jane Balbo, DO, Kelly Bubp, Ph.D., and moderator Roxanne Malé-Brune, Ph.D.

This session will identify some of the challenges that women face within male-dominated fields within STEM. Panelists will discuss how they have responded to these challenges, their strategies for success, and how they have been motivated by other women.

Panel: Making the Most of Mentors and Responding to Difficult Advisors
Panelists include Dwan Robinson, Ph.D., Mac Stricklen, Jenny Hall-Jones, Ph.D., and Edna Wangui, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Geography

This session will provide participants with strategies to maximize their relationships with their mentors and advisors, while also providing resources and suggestions for dealing with difficult advisors.

4:10-5:00PM

Closing Keynote with Rhiannon Childs

Rhiannon Childs is the Co-Founder and Vice President of Community Engagement and Social Impact for the Ohio Women's Alliance (OWA), a statewide coalition of female and femme community builders, and leaders. OWA was developed to uncover new leaders, and support and connect existing organizers, and activists. Together, OWA is pushing the needle towards a more gender-equitable Ohio, strengthening the collective power of women and femmes across the state.

Rhiannon's background in the United States Air Force as a healthcare professional serving our country, and caring for veterans was the beginning of her compassion and dedication to social justice. Since then, Rhiannon has worked to center the voices of those who are underserved and left forgotten.

In 2016 Rhiannon began organizing as the Executive Director for Women's March Ohio. She mobilized over 20,000 people throughout the state of Ohio an onward to Washington D.C. for the largest protest march in United States History.

Rhiannon's ambitions are to continue the fight to dismantle injustice. She is dedicated to increasing a prosperous cultural shift, no matter your identity, zip code, who you love, or disability. She is also a board member of New Leaders Council Columbus as the Recruitment Deputy Chair 2019, the Chair of Community Outreach for Lean In Ohio 2017, a member of the King Arts Complex 2017 Women's Service Board, and the former Central Ohio Regional Field Manager of Planned Parenthood Advocates of Ohio.
