Position: Graduate Assistant for Supplemental Instruction (SI)
Remuneration: Minimum: $11,000 (plus tuition waiver)
Contact Person: Amanda Remnant, Coordinator of Supplemental Instruction

Position Description:

Going into its 27th year at Ohio University, the Supplemental Instruction (SI) program assists and prepares students for academic success in OU’s most challenging undergraduate courses. SI operates by hiring, training, and supervising 30-35 of the top undergraduate students based on academic achievement and leadership skills. Those student leaders are then responsible for running one hour-long study sessions three times per week. The study sessions are based in collaborative / team learning as well as utilizing strategies that aim to help students build the confidence and knowledge needed to succeed in college courses. This position would be a good fit for graduate students who are passionate about building student leaders and helping undergraduates persist and succeed in college.

The SI Graduate Assistants will gain experience in organizing and leading SI Leader trainings, supervising student leaders, and understanding the ins and outs of how a university program operates. Ultimately, the SI GAs gain hands-on experience in the world of academic support with a program that is grounded in student development and retention efforts preparing them for positions in both student and academic affairs.

Under the guidance of the Assistant Director of the Academic Advancement Center / Coordinator of Supplemental Instruction the SI Graduate Assistants will help with:

- Supervising 15-17 SI Leaders.
- Observing SI sessions and providing constructive feedback to SI Leaders.
- Assisting in the creating and implementing of SI trainings.
- Organizing and running bi-weekly SI Team Leader Meetings.
- Marketing and promoting the SI program.
- Collecting, reporting, and evaluating data on program use and impact.
